Craig is our building and construction industry dispute resolution and litigation specialist at Vincent CCL Pty Limited.

In addition to having 12 years extensive legal experience Craig also has prior experience in the construction industry which he gained from being a project manager for a large contractor in the air conditioning and mechanical ventilation sector.

With his knowledge of the law and the construction industry Craig is able to provide practical advice and solutions for all forms of building and construction disputes.

Craig was a senior litigator for a major Australian legal practice and for the Sydney office of an international law firm for 10 years prior to joining Vincent CCL Pty Limited. His practice involved dispute resolution and litigation for large and small scale organizations including one of the largest listed property developers in Australia.

He has extensive Court experience ranging from multi million dollars defects disputes involving high rise buildings to smaller matters in local courts and tribunals. He also has extensive experience in alternative methods of dispute resolution such as mediation, arbitration, expert determination and Court references.

He has applied those skills in conjunction with his construction industry and management experience to provide commercial, practical and costs effective legal advice to his clients.
